In Both National and American Organizations Race Still Is Open.

THIS MAY BE CRUCIAL MONTH

By July 4 Some One Club Likely Will Have Lead That Will Make it Odds-On Favorite.

New York, June 7 .- June frequently has been a crucial month in major league pennant races, and June of 1914 promises to bear out the record of many past years. In both the National and American Leagues the race is still an open one, with three teams in each closely grouped. By the 4th of July, however, if tradition holds good, some one team in each organization likely will have sprinted out in front for a lead that will make it an odds-on faverite for the penant.

In the older league the Ginats hold first place, but by no commanding margin. Returning East from a tour on which they won most of their games, they struck unexpectedly hard going in Philadelphia, getting only an even break with the seventh place team and opened their home stay with a defeat by St. Louis.

Portsmouth Here for Three-Game Series

Portsmouth returns to Richmond with the Colts to-day for a series of three games, and Manager Ryan hopes to profit by the visit of the Pirates. While in Truckerville the locals were able to take two out of the three conflicts, and it is certainly within the bounds of reason to assume that they will be equally as successful in the home pasture. Should there be an upset and the Colts lose a majority of the games, Ray Ryan will be one disappointed individual. The week-end will again be spent by the seaside, the Tars being the opponents of the Colts. The game this afternoon will begin at the usual hour, 4:30 o'clock, and a crowd of regulars is sure to be on land to welcome the home lads after their week's trip abroad. Tod Sloan is the likeliest selection for hurling homes, Jesse Tannehill will pitch for the Pirates.

PRIMITIVE INDIAN TRIBES FOUND IN SOUTH AMERICA

Dr. Church, Member of Amazon Expedition of University of Pennsylvania, Tells of Journey. [Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

Philadelphia, June 7 .-- A story of wild Indian tribes who had never seen a white man, nor a gun, nor clothing. civilization until his arrival, is brough! from the interior of South America by Dr. Franklin Church, a member of the Amazon expedition of the University of Pennsylvania Museum.

Dr. Church recently returned from the Quinas after a four months' journey, bringing with him the latest photographs taken by the expedition.

Dr. Church says the members of the tribes studied by the expedition were veritable "Fridays," living in the most primitive fashion. They had never seen a fishhook until the sudden ap-pearance of the party of explorers. Their fires they made by rubbing sticks together, a rather crude method, but one at which they were exceptionally Curiously enough they had Major A. W. Catlin, U. S. M.
